"Give me five minutes in that backfield and I'd put that game on ice."

"How many?"

"One!"

"She spent five years in the WACS before coming here!"

"Don't touch her, Mike . . . she's consecrated . . . use the shovel!"

"My third graders do much better."

"Good conduct? Not you, Willie!"

"Ah, good Sister, could you aid and abet one who has fulfilled his class prophecy of being the one least likely to succeed?"

"Tow that wreck out of here!"

"Touche!"

"Does this look cleaner now?"

"We need honest watchers at the polls. . . . Should we ask them?"

"Twenty-four pairs of bobby sox?"

"Trick or treat!"

"Trick or treat!"

"Sister's taking me to match wits with the Principal."

"Thank God they're tucked in safely . . . I was worried sick about them at the picnic!"

"Chartreuse thread, anyone?"

"Oh, no trouble, officer—we're just waiting 'till our hour is up."

"Nice, juicy hash . . . smothered with leftovers."

"Can I borrow the catcher's mask, Sister?"

"Eight nuns and one novice . . . put down eight and a half, Al."

"Now relax, children, nothing to be afraid of."

"We'll save you from those rustlers, Sister!"

"This way, but please keep silence. . . . The Sisters are at prayer."

"Our sewing teacher."

*"This car needs overhauling, Sister Bertha.
It keeps dragging in the rear."*

"You may eat that taffy apple when the bell rings for lunch."

"When can we have another party, Sister?"

"Not enough room on the blackboard, Sister."

"Now let me tell you the cute things he does in class!"

"Sister'll be all right—had her first class today!"

"John." "Here!"

"Mary." "Present!"

"Joseph." "Here!"

"Peter." "Pray for us!"

"Father's just back from giving a mission in Texas."

"And now we leave these hallowed halls of learning to face the grim realities of the outside world."

"Security regulations forbid me to divulge any information."

"Nothing, thanks . . . just looking."

"The varmints went that-a-way!"

"The diner's open."

"The pastor would like to borrow his clubs this afternoon."

"I wonder if she's going to tell Father she took my water pistol!"

"Say hello to Sister."
